DRAFT INDUCTION RULING IS MADE BY U. S. LEADER

Draftees Will Be Allowed Time To Settle Their Own Affairs

PUBLISH REGULATIONS

Last Of Six Volumes Prescribed For Operation Of System Out

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. (AP)—President Roosevelt has presented to Congress a bill which would give draftees time to settle their own affairs before being inducted into the military service. The bill is part of a series of regulations that will govern the operation of the draft system. The regulations are the last of six volumes that will be published by the War Relocation Authority. The regulations will cover the selection of draftees, the process of induction, and the treatment of draftees while they are in the service. The bill is expected to be passed by Congress in the near future.

GOVERNMENT BUREAU REPORT ON GINNINGS OF COTTON IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. (AP)—The census bureau today announced that the ginnings of cotton in the United States for the year 1939-1940 are estimated at 10,000,000 bales. This is a decrease from the 10,500,000 bales ginned in 1938-1939. The decrease is due to a number of factors, including a late start to the planting season and a dry summer. The census bureau is continuing to monitor the situation and will release more information as it becomes available.

Anesthetic Is Now Fitted To Particular Individual

By Howard W. Blakelee
Anesthesia, the science of rendering a patient unconscious, is now being fitted to the particular individual. This is a new development in the field of medicine and it is expected that it will lead to a more complete understanding of the human mind and body. The new anesthetic is called 'Anesthine' and it is made from a combination of various chemicals. It is used to render a patient unconscious during surgery and it is expected that it will be used in a wide range of other medical procedures.

Bookworm Study Unearths Some Surprising Episodes

By Fiddy Gilmore
WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. (AP)—The Smithsonian Institution today dug into the academic subject of bookworms and unearthed some surprising facts. The study was conducted by a team of researchers and it revealed that bookworms have been around for millions of years. The study also found that bookworms are not as common as people think they are. The researchers found that bookworms are most common in old books and in places where there is a lot of paper. The study is expected to lead to a better understanding of bookworms and how to deal with them.

Changing The Shape Of The Country

So many things are changing the physical aspect of the country today that we can scarcely comprehend them, and can scarcely keep pace with the rapid movement.

The great dams that create vast lakes which never existed before. The new auto highways, cutting in new ways through different routes. The new public buildings, the new airports, the newly planted forests and parks. Truly the country is being built over.

There are forces at work here that we scarcely realize as yet. The necessities of modern war sternly dictate that many new industries must be located in positions where they would not otherwise go. While this should cause no loss to any present city, it may well bring new plants and industries to cities and localities which would not otherwise get them.

In general, for instance, it has not been felt wise to establish new production plants vital to defense closer than 500 miles to any border. The inmost center of the country, farthest from possible bombing attack, has an obvious advantage. The concentration of Britain's productive facilities in so small an area is one of that country's greatest handicaps, one that may yet be fatal. Britain, being so small in area, could scarcely avoid that. We can, and we should.

Those are general principles. In every case the particular situation must be considered. One airplane plant, for instance, to build a huge addition, wants to build it adjoining its present seaboard plant. The government is urging that it be built inland.

Management experience and trained personnel are now concentrated at the present plant. To shift them and introduce new problems of shipping and assembly of materials might well cause delay in a program which now brooks no delay. But additional safety might outweigh all this.

To balance such factors off one against the other is at present one of the jobs of the National Defense Committee. In one case the factor of uninterrupted production might be most important. In another the factor of later and permanent safety from attack might be paramount. But in any case the trend is to the interior for works vital to defense, so that even a landing and occupation of the coast would not immediately paralyze defense.

Here is a factor, scarcely bearing at all on the development of the country two years ago, which is now highly important. The defense effort is certain to introduce many decentralizing trends wished for by planners for years, but do it much faster than the planners could have hoped.

Paying War Bill

How long can Britain's war chest last? The answer is: For years to come. When the present war began and the existence of the Johnson law (forbidding American loans to nations in default on previous borrowings) was considered, many persons thought that Britain would have a heart-breaking time in supplying the sinews of war.

But Britain brought her resources into quick reorganization which obliterated the necessity of borrowing from this country. She possessed herself of the United States security holdings of the citizens of England (excluding citizen holdings in Canada, South Africa, Australia). These amounted to $2,800,000,000. Only $200,000,000 of these have been marketed to date, which means that Britain has not more than scratched this available fund. There is in American banks $1,750,000,000 gold earmarked as the property of foreign nations.

About half of that belongs to Britain. Every year Britain is taking out of the ground in South Africa and Canada about $750,000,000 in gold. And that helps pay the war bill.

Army Motor Vehicles

Not all the war equipment production is in the aircraft factories. Motorization of the army is swelling automobile output, and production of army automotive equipment is just starting.

To equip a field force of 1,400,000 men will require 186,000 vehicles. Of these 16,000 have been purchased by the war department from 1930 funds. A record lot of 50,000 will be delivered by January 15.

The automotive industry, under the requirements of the war department, is working to facilitate interchangeability of parts. Gasoline tank patterns have been reduced from eight types to three; instrument-board fittings, spark plugs and generators from six to two; coils, condensers and speedometers from six to one; fan belts from twenty-one to three; batteries from twenty-nine to one; door handles from eight to one.

Of the twenty-seven divisions in the Continental United States, twenty-five now rely on motor transport for tactical operation and supply.

Boos, Audible And Inaudible

Securely better than the boosing itself is the suggestion that responsible leaders of either party would encourage or countenance it.

Public affairs are a serious matter, not to be decided by the ethics of the lower strata of sports events. Every responsible political leader knows it, and knows that every follower who descends to the hiss-and-hoo level buries his own cause just that much.

The reason is clear. If politics were to be conducted at that level, the quality of candidate willing to endure it would fall off conspicuously and immediately.

And after all, what was ever half so effective as a nice, deep, dead silence?

Mexican officials deny that there is any "fifth column" down there. Texas should take courage. Perhaps there will be no invasion across the Rio Grande, after all.

THE DICTATOR AT HOME

Dictator (returning home after a bumpious day).—
Hail!
Wife.—Hail my eye! Remember you're not at the chancellery now.
Dictator.—Do you realize to whom you are speaking?
Wife.—I'm the only person who does!

Dictator (still unable to shake off the dictator mood).—
My smoking jacket, please!
Wife.—You know where it is, don't you?
Dictator.—Get it for me at once, Ella.
Wife.—Get it yourself. You're no cripple.
Dictator.—I warn you, you are exhausting my patience.

Wife.—Aw, cut that out, Toots!
Dictator (winning).—Toots!
Wife.—You never used to object to me calling you that.

Dictator.—That was away back before I... before I... before I...

Wife.—Before you got all those uniforms, emblems and ideas for salutes. You were a nice boy in those days. Little did I ever dream you'd turn out like this.
Dictator.—There you go belittling me again!
Wife.—I'm not belittling you.
Dictator.—Yes, you are, (he lights a cigar)

Wife (sternly).—Put out that nickel stogie! You know better than to smoke in the living room.

Dictator.—I'll smoke where I wish. This is my house.
Wife.—Listen, you either put that roman candle out or you go out on the back porch and smoke it. And no back talk.

Dictator (who knows when he is licked). Oh, all right, but I want it understood that my action is not to be misinterpreted as a sign of weakness. I am not establishing a precedent. I know my rights and...

Wife.—Aw, Joe, pipe down! You sound so silly.

Dictator.—I resent your studied attempts to undermine my self-confidence. It's not very nice of you.

Wife.—You've got me wrong, Joe. All I want you to understand is that you can't get away with all that pomp of the universe stuff with me. I know you when Dictator.—You ought to be proud of me.

Wife.—Why?

Dictator.—Look what I've done! Look where I've risen! And all on my own ability.

Wife.—Gee, but you've got a scuffed head. Don't I get any credit? Who designed that emblem? I did. Who thought up that color scheme for the shirt? Me. Who sat up with you night after night studying history and trying to point out Napoleon's mistakes?

Dictator.—Have we got to go over all that again? You helped me. I admit. But I had to have brains.

Wife.—Balance. All you had to have was a rain and your nerve.

Dictator.—Let's not argue. I am streaky today.

Wife.—What makes you think you're getting streaky?

Dictator.—I told you I wanted streak tonight.

Wife.—So what? You're getting cold, aren't you?

Dictator.—I will not have my orders ignored with impunity. I will not be treated so contemptuously. I will not permit my authority to be discounted.

Wife.—If you knew how funny you looked talking that way, you'd cut it out, Toots.

Dictator.—Don't call me Toots. Do you know what millions of people are calling me? They are calling me their hero, their idol, their perfect leader!

Wife.—Yeah. And do you remember what the boys used to call you back in your boyhood days?

Dictator.—What?

Wife.—Peewee!

Dictator.—This is too much. I'll go down to the police where the boys respect me for what I am.

Wife.—Okay, as long as you don't bring 'em in here.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

SCHOOLS DO NOT OVERLOOK INDIVIDUAL DIFFERENCES

Good teaching considers individual differences in children. We all accept that fact. Public schools are, by the nature of their organization, limited in the practice of the principle, but they do the best they can through hundreds of ever-present obstacles.

At the end of the month report card, go home and invariably the parent of a failing child will visit the school to complain that this particular child is a menace to the teachers. He is an individual. He differs from his companions, and he is not getting the attention he needs and deserves to bring out his best gifts.

Upon close scrutiny it is discovered that this child's differences are strong enough to make him stand out like a sore thumb wherever he goes. He does poor work in his subjects, and his conduct is unsatisfactory. His differences consist of striking mannerisms. He rolls his eyes wildly and interrupts in meaningless fashion. Or he assumes an air of superiority, smiles in pity at the childishness about him and implies that this work is too easy for him. Or he scribbles weak drawings on every paper, back margin and exposed surface he touches and poses as an artist, a genius left to starve. Or he is whimsical, performing quite up to the expectation of the teacher when he desires. "He felt that way, you know." Or he is early, or given to tears and temper, or he is just plain dumb, dull and delinquent.

Truly these children are different, and we have them with us always. The sad part of it is that their differences are on the wrong side of the line. These are unwelcome differences that demand special attention, but not the applause the children long for and their parents would have for them. They need the services of the psychologist, the psychiatrist and the special teacher to rescue them, if possible, to wholehearted communities.

The child who is different with a fine difference, is not likely to be overlooked. Power and beauty rarely lack recognition and rarely meet with disapproval. Worthy differences are very precious, and a teacher is quick to cherish any such that come her way.

It is true that our schools, as a whole, lack facilities for the development of the gifted children. But they do not lack the understanding that recognizes and admires and helps them as far as lies in their power.

That power should be increased. We have more and better facilities for the care and instruction and development of children of unhappy differences than we have for the children of worthy gifts. We take better care of our helples and potentially useless citizens than we do of those who have the power of leadership. We still keep leveling downward, instead of building up the peaks of power in the incoming generation. We should have more and better facilities to develop the worthy differences in our children who attend public schools.

Knutson says the United States is short on machine tools. Maybe the neighbors borrowed them and failed to return them.

SOLDIER POLICE GUARDING CAMP

Carry Nightsticks, Wear Badges—And Enforce The Law

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Soldiers with nightsticks and police badges—the latter to impress civilians only—are maintaining law and order in the sprawling army camp here where at least 52,000 men must train within a few months.

Proud of themselves because they are the latest recruits to military police, this colored company looks upon pushing a nightstick as a duty.

Four of them are keeping the peace in the camp that spreads over acres of pine woods, and even fields, on the left and right side.

They are regular military police, the 25th division, and are the first of their kind in the army.

18,000 the military police company will be raised to 170 men.

They work not only in the camp area but in the city of Hattiesburg 10 miles away where the soldiers like to wander when they have a few hours to themselves.

Their job is to prevent sabotage, fire, theft, disorderly conduct or any misdemeanors among the troops—and civilians, too, on the army property where 11,000 workmen are now employed.

They direct traffic in conjunction with state police but will arrest a civilian for any violation on federal property, and if the offense is not against the government, will turn him over to civilian authorities.

If the offense is against the government, then the civilian is given over to the United States marshal. An offending soldier is dealt with by the army.

A guardhouse, until a permanent one can be erected for the end of a mess hall has to serve the purpose, and is used to confine those arrested in the camp here.

But the military police have been given the same of the Hattiesburg jail to look up offenders arrested in the city.

"We carry the police badge," said the company commander, Captain John B. B. "to let the public know what we are military police. That's why we carry the badge. A lot of people don't know what the military police are."

They are to be a police and a military police, and will be in charge of the camp here.

PROMOTE NEGRO TO GENERALSHIP

Colonel Among Numerous Army Men Who Are Raised In Rank

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today announced the promotion of Colonel Benjamin O. Davis to become the first negro general in the army's history.

Davis' elevation, to be a brigadier general, was among a number of high rank promotions which Mr. Roosevelt said were prepared by the increase of the army.

Major General Delos C. Emmons, commander of the GHQ air force, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant general, the same rank held by commanders of the army corps.

In the air corps, in addition to General Emmons, the promotions included Brigadier General John F. Curry, and three other commanders, to be major general.

Colonel Charles W. Russell, chief of staff GHQ air force, to be brigadier general.

Colonel John C. McDowell, John B. B. and Charles H. Wach, all being commanders, to be brigadier general.

Captain and division commanders promoted were:

To be major general: Brigadier General Walter R. Wilson, Brigadier General Frank D. Potts, Brigadier General Francis Q. C. Gardner, Brigadier General John C. McDowell, Brigadier General John B. B. and Charles H. Wach, all being commanders, to be brigadier general.

would have no place for me. I don't have any boy friends—I never had the right kind of boy friends, and I don't want to be saved.

"I never met the right kind of people. All my life I could never meet nice people. That's why I went to The Pierre—I wanted a nice place to die."

Weinstein said the young woman had been employed as a secretary by a Chicago candy company. She quit her job October 12 and bought a train ticket for New York.

Hotel attendants found her in a death-like sleep October 14. There was nothing to identify her except her fictitious registration, "Mary Rogers, New York City." When she regained consciousness, she identified herself and told her story. Doctors said no one in the history of Bellevue hospital ever emerged from a stupor as deep and prolonged as hers. Weinstein said she declared the 10 days of unconsciousness seemed like only a few minutes.

"I'd float away and think I was dead, and then come back to life again," he quoted her as saying. "Finally, somebody took my hand—I could feel that their hands were warm, and death-like sleep October 14. There was nothing to identify her except after all, I felt so angry."

LONG PREDICTS MEASURE FIGHT

Says He's Informed Old Regulars Will Oppose Amendments

PATTERSON HITS AT BUREAUCRATS

Says Minds Of People Being Conditioned To Accept Censorship

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Grover Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, asserted Thursday that business must help preserve the freedom of the press if it hopes to save free enterprise from an attack by a "crippling bureaucracy."

The Ohio editor asked delegates at the convention of the Association of National Advertisers for a united fight against "common enemies" among "an ignorant bureaucracy that day by day lays down a barrage in a desperate effort to make us retreat toward an equilibrium of stagnation."

He charged an "outlet of a free press" was the first and essential step in a campaign.

Naming Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and Senator Sherman Minton, Democrat, Indiana, among "enemies," Patterson said the "bureaucracy" was "trying to plant the seeds of confusion and distrust in the minds of our people."

"You will find," he said, "that if you are not careful, they will be justified in taking over and destroying either by regimentation or economic pressure, free newspapers."

"I say to you gentlemen," he said, "that the mind of the American public is being conditioned to accept the abolition of our right as newspapers to print the news without distortion and our right to comment on the news—our right to take sides and to be violent in our watchfulness for the preservation of the American way."

"The public is being conditioned to accept the abolition of your right as manufacturers and advertisers to engage in whatever business you please and to say what you will, within the bounds of common honesty, about the products you make."

"How could you like," Patterson continued, "to make us a newspaper list for an advertising campaign headed by such publications as Senator Minton's 'Suburban Telegram,' Harold Ickes' 'Daily Dirt,' Robert Jackson's 'Legal Shogun,' and Thurman Arnold's 'Cease and Desist'?"

Saying that the effectiveness of national advertising in newspapers needed no further proof, the editor asked the business group to remember also that their advertising dollars were necessary to give the press the independence necessary to survive.

SO DE 'Z' FINALLY GETS STRAIGHTENED

SANFORD, N. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Register T. W. McDowell asked the terms regarding the possible military convention in his name.

"A Z. Sanford," he said, "is the only one who will not be satisfied with the terms."

Alexander, Sanford, who was the Z. Sanford, said, "I am not a Z. Sanford, I am a Z. Sanford."

"I am not a Z. Sanford, I am a Z. Sanford," he said, "I am not a Z. Sanford, I am a Z. Sanford."

RELEASE IS SOUGHT FOR BOY IN ANGOLA

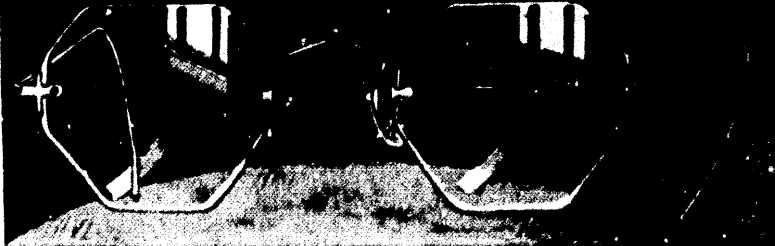

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Suit to obtain release of a youth alleged to be only 17 years old from Angola penitentiary was filed in East Baton Rouge district court Thursday by the boy's father, Payton McCarty of Washington parish.

McCarty alleged that his son George, 17, was sentenced to concurrent penitentiary sentences of eight and three months for larceny and breaking and entering and to an additional 60 days in jail in Franklinton after his trial last May.

The father contended in his petition that the district court was without jurisdiction to try a minor and that therefore the sentence was illegal. He asked for a writ of mandamus against Henry W. Fitch, general manager of the penitentiary, ordering him to produce the youth for a hearing.

It is said that approximately 62 per cent of the passenger car travel on American highways is for business purposes.

JAMES B. BROWN IS DEAD AT 72

Small Town Boy Built $50,000,000 Kentucky Financial Empire

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 25.—(AP)—James Buckner Brown, 72, a small town boy who came to the city and in 28 spectacular years built himself a $50,000,000 Kentucky financial empire, is dead.

Brown, who in his day was a bank president, politician, sportsman and newspaper publisher, died late Thursday after a Saturday heart attack. He never recovered.

His gigantic financial structure toppled in 1930 following collapse of Caldwell and Company, Nashville, Tenn., one of the largest pre-depression financial institutions in the south. Brown was indicted on federal and state charges of misapplication of funds. He was acquitted at each of three trials and remaining indictments against him subsequently were dropped.

An attempted comeback failed in 1939 and he had been in retirement since that time.

NURSES LECTURE ON ORTHOPEDICS

Public Health Workers From 15 Parishes At Meeting Here

Speaking before a group of public health nurses from the Monroe area, Miss Jane Thorstad and Miss Hazel Wise lectured on the various phases of "Staff Education in Orthopedics" Thursday in the Frances hotel.

Miss Thorstad is the acting supervisor of the crippled children's division of the state board of health, while Miss Wise is the consultant for the Monroe and Shreveport areas. The Monroe area comprises 15 parishes in northeast Louisiana. The nurses in the area were divided into two groups, with the first group receiving instruction last week.

The program is an effort by the state board of health to fully acquaint the public health nurses with the treatment and prevention of diseases in crippled children.

Miss Thorstad discussed the history of the crippled children's program and the problems of the lame child. She stressed the point that a large number of the crippled children might have been healed if given proper treatment soon enough after the cause had set in.

The crippled children supervisor also spoke on the "Main Muscle Groups and Types of Crippling." She stated that a large number of the crippled children might have been healed if given proper treatment soon enough after the cause had set in.

Miss Wise gave a review of functional anatomy and discussed poliomyelitis. She stated that children who had infantile paralysis should be left in isolation until all the soreness and fever had left their bodies. "In many cases," said the consultant, "the child is brought to a hospital thereby placing other children in danger of contracting the disease."

She said that "only specially trained nurses should give treatment to these cases."

The conference will again meet today with the first session opening at 9:30 a. m.

Miss Wise will discuss "Body Mechanics and Posture," while Miss Thorstad will speak on the correction of bad posture by exercise.

In the afternoon session, the lectures will be concluded and a general discussion on follow-up visits by public nurses will be held.

EXPRESS AGENCY MEETING IS HELD

W. M. Smith Says Indications Point To Better Business

All indications point to an increase in business for November and December, W. M. Smith, general manager of the Texas department, Houston, Tex., told more than 50 employees of the North Louisiana district of the Railway Express Agency at a meeting Thursday night at the Frances hotel.

Other officials who attended the meeting were J. C. North, western traffic manager, San Francisco, Calif.; W. W. Grove, superintendent, Dallas, Tex.; F. W. McConnell, district sales manager, Houston, Tex.; J. W. Blossom, route agent, Texarkana, Tex.; R. L. Lantham, traveling commercial agent, Oklahoma City, Okla.; C. C. Stevens, traveling commercial agent, Dallas, Tex.; and C. L. Jackson, loss and damage supervisor, Houston, Tex. The officials are visiting 30 cities and towns in Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma and holding meetings similar to the one here Thursday night for the purpose of outlining the handling of fall and Christmas traffic. In his address Mr. Smith said that "all indications point toward at least a 15 per cent increase throughout the Southwest and West, and the percentage of increase in the industrial centers of the East may be even greater."

HITS FOREIGN POLICY ISSUE IN CAMPAIGNS

EMPORIA, Kas., Oct. 25.—(AP)—"The foreign policy issue, so far as it affects Great Britain and this war," should be left out of the presidential campaign, says William Allen White, chairman of the committee to defeat America by aiding the allies. "The acts of the president in aiding

PLANS ARE LAID FOR AIR PILOTS

Seek To Coordinate Proposals In Civil Training Program

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Defense commission officials said an effort would be made today to coordinate various proposals for making the civilian airplane pilot training program available to Latin-American republics.

Nelson Rockefeller, the commission's coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics, arranged to discuss the subject with representatives of the civil aeronautics board and non-governmental groups supporting the idea.

Among the latter was the inter-American committee, composed of civilian pilots and formed to promote goodwill among North and South American aviation.

small fund had been earmarked for money available for improvement of relations with Latin America to furnish primary pilot training to about 20 student fliers from South and Central America and to give secondary training to as many of that number as qualify.

The secondary training would be the same as given to the country's civilian pilots to prepare them for the army's basic training.

While commission officials emphasized that today's conference was largely exploratory, other sources indicated there was little likelihood of any physical extension of the CAB's training program to Latin America such as establishment of schools or classes there.

Officials pointed out that the need for instructors here was such as to virtually preclude any being sent out of this country. Having the Latin American students come to this country for the training would solve that angle of the problem.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB HEARS J. S. FOX

Local Insurance Man Addresses Club On National Defense

John S. Fox, local insurance man, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Y's Men's club in Frances hotel Wednesday evening. Other guests included Tommie Brown, Merle Richensfeld, and Howard Butcher. Fox addressed the club on national defense, and introduced as new members.

Next week the club will meet at Reunion Park at 6 p.m. it was announced by President Dick Troy.

Mr. Fox read a paper entitled, "Preparedness for Communism in National Defense." This paper, prepared by Fox in collaboration with T. O. Brown, was presented at a recent meeting of the Rotary club.

Points of vital interest to Americans were brought out by Fox, who was placed on the speaker's list.

activities and what individual communities can do to aid.

A comparison was made of what is happening to European Democracies and what might happen to us, "if we are not on our toes, actively and vigorously combating the fifth column."

"Spiritual revitalization coupled with actively combating subversive activities constitutes to a large part the function of national defense," Mr. Fox said.

"When we speak of preparedness for communities in national defense, we touch upon the very foundation of our lives, for the business of government and defense has its beginning in the community prepared itself that far and no farther can the government go in completing the larger task of welding together the thousands of communities into a solid front against destruction."

"As citizens and as Y's Men we may, therefore, ask ourselves how can I best serve my community and my country in national defense? The answer is by thinking American, talking American, and being American in our conduct, in our homes, on the streets, and in our hearts."

HANDSOME ICEMAN IS FROM CHICAGO

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Ted Barnick, 30-year-old Chicagoan, was chosen "the handsomest iceman in America" Thursday night in a contest conducted by the National Association of Ice Industries.

Barnick, a 195-pounder with blue eyes, won over 11 other contestants from other sections of the country. He has the cafe route in Chicago, is captain of a Chicago softball team, swims, plays tennis and golf and hauls about 10,000 pounds of ice daily.

CITES OPPOSITION TO BRITISH CREDIT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Senator Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, who supported rejection of the neutrality act to permit the "cash and carry" sale of arms, said today he would oppose proposals to extend credit to Great Britain for the purchase of military supplies in this country. The Indian also told reporters that he likewise would contest any move to transfer any of the army's long range bombers or naval warships to the British. He predicted that attempts in these directions may be forthcoming after the election.

BOY'S LEG BROKEN IN FOOTBALL GAME

Ten-year-old Jack Young, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Young, Jewell street, West Monroe, suffered a fractured right leg Thursday while playing football on the St. Matthew's school grounds.

The youth was rushed to St. Francis sanitarium where he was treated for the break which was four inches above the ankle, according to hospital attaches.

Physicians said the boy was attempting to tackle a schoolmate who was carrying the ball on a football game. In the attempt the would-be tackler was thrown against a iron pipe, which was part of the playground equipment.

A student in the fifth grade at St. Matthew's the boy was later brought to his home in West Monroe.

BASTROP W. O. W. DEDICATES HOME

BASTROP, Oct. 25. — (Special) — More than 250 Woodmen of the World were present at the dedication of the new W. O. W. home here Thursday night.

Mayor A. B. Andrews presented an address of welcome, and Ray Ferguson, Winaborn, responded to the welcome. Principal speakers of the evening were Joe Brown, state manager of Louisiana, and Judge W. C. Burden, national director of the W. O. W. Omaha, Neb. J. L. Tredway delivered the dedication of the new home. The Ouachita Valley Camp of Monroe presented a large American flag to the Bastrop camp, in honor of the 42 years of loyal friendship and good work the Bastrop camp has rendered.

STALIN'S POWER OF HIS FORCES

Semion Timoshenko Was Rushed to Finland When Army Stopped

EDITOR'S NOTE: Russia's march into Poland and its difficult conquest of Finland disclosed many weaknesses in its army. Marshal Semion Timoshenko was rushed to Finland to save the day after that little nation blocked the Russian invasion. Six months ago, Stalin made him commissar for defense and instructed him to reform the army.

By Henry Cassidy
MOSCOW.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Marshal Semion Timoshenko, the former peasant who became a war lord, has converted Russia's armed forces into something like a foreign regular army and led it into six neighboring countries in his first six months as commissar for defense.

Little known before this, he has now become one of the most familiar and popular of the Soviet leaders.

The big professional soldier will mark his first half-year by reviewing the Moscow garrison from Lenin's tomb in Red Square November 7, on the 23rd anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The career which has carried Timoshenko to this height began at the village of Furmanka, in the Izmalo district of Bessarabia, where he was born in 1895.

As a boy, he worked in the fields, and as a subject of the Tsar, he was mobilized in 1915 to serve with the imperial army in the World War. He was trained first in a machine-gun school, and then fought in the fourth cavalry division against the Germans.

When the Bolshevik revolution began in 1917, his division was one of the first to go over to the Communists. Trained soldiers were scarce in the early days of the Red Army, and Timoshenko rose rapidly.

He fought in the civil war against the White Generals in 1918, and in 1919, he was commanding a division in the first cavalry army of Marshal Semion Budenny.

A historic painting of the revolution portrays the meeting of Marshal Budenny and Marshal Kliment Voroshiloff, the two most celebrated Soviet soldiers of the revolution, with Timoshenko in the background.

Now, Timoshenko has eclipsed them both.

He succeeded Voroshiloff as defense commissar, and Budenny became first vice-minister of defense. Voroshiloff was made chairman of the defense committee, but active command of the armed forces was given to Timoshenko.

Timoshenko headed the Soviet forces which entered Western White Russia and Ukraine September 11, 1939, an occupied Eastern Poland after the collapse of Western Polish resistance to Germany.

That winter, Timoshenko was shifted to the Finnish front, after the advance of troops from the Leningrad military district was checked, and he was given much of the credit for the campaign which finally broke the Mannerheim line.

Seven weeks after being appointed defense commissar, he led his army into his homeland of Bessarabia, ceded to Russia by Rumania.

Timoshenko's entry into Bessarabia, which had been Russian in his youth, Rumanian after the World War, and now once more Russian, was made a highly dramatic event.

Cameras were present for his reunion with members of his family whom he had not seen for 20 years, and their meeting was shown widely on Soviet news reels and in newspaper photographs.

The circuit of his army's march was completed, at least, temporarily, by the occupation of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, and conversion of the Baltic states into Soviet republics.

Timoshenko, however, had already embarked on his program of reform of the Red Army.

Army organs last disclosed the reform was ordered by Stalin personally, to be "based on the experience of recent wars." This, presumably, meant both Russia's campaign in Finland, and the Western European war.

Generals and other officers' ranks replaced the old system of commanders. Political commissars, who formerly shared authority with the commanders, were reduced to the status of assistants.

The high command was shaken up. Discipline was tightened. The salute was introduced, decorations were awarded for merit, and guard house

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

Adolf Hitler will have made a great stride at least on paper, toward consolidation of his empire if the French government accedes to the new Nazi terms for Franco-German cooperation which he is understood to have discussed yesterday with Premier Marshal Petain yesterday at their meeting "somewhere in France."

These demands are said to involve even a moderate French cooperation in the war against England, as well as participation in the reconstruction of Europe under the future plans for a "new order."

Their acceptance would seem to wipe out the last vestige of charge that Germany may attempt again in unhappy France of the totalitarian detestable war.

As I said yesterday, I believe that Hitler's move cuts far deeper than any mere preparation for another offensive against Britain, although that undoubtedly figures in his plans. To my mind, the impact which he seeks from France is infinitely more rather than merely to be a stepping stone to a new offensive against Britain.

If he can secure French moral support or even open acquiescence, he will have removed one of the chief obstacles to his grandiose scheme for remoulding the continent into a unit whose sole business will be to contribute to the might of Germany.

The all-important obstacle which he has to eliminate is, of course, the British empire, of which more and more is a continuing program.

If Marshal Petain had his government decide to play along with Hitler it surely will represent in act punishment for failure were made more acute. Training was intensified. Timoshenko worked tirelessly on this task, directing personally the war games in the Moscow, Kiev and special western military districts, and analyzing the results.

He emphasized more field work for officers, more training for troops under battle conditions; more cohesion on the offensive and more flexibility on the defensive.

As part from the military, Timoshenko also has political duties. He became a member of the political bureau of the central committee of the Communist party in the Ukraine, the highest authority for that province, in 1932.

Since then, he has been elected a deputy in the supreme Soviet council, and made a member of the presidium and the foreign affairs committee of the supreme council.

ment is a bitter one. If it accepts the Nazi terms it may get a modification of the fierce conditions under which it labors, and the release of some of its occupied territory. If it refuses, the country faces even greater torment and privations than it now endures.

Petain must feel that his business is to salvage as much of his country as he can from German hands. His government must, of course, be Fascist for cooperation with his conqueror.

But after all, the question surely has arisen in his mind as to whether the precise form of government matters much under the present trying circumstances.

It is French territory that counts right now—the actual land. Governments may come and governments may go, but the soil of France will remain.

What would you yourself do under such conditions? Would you grasp at the soil of your fatherland and cling to it with all your strength, or would you feel that there was some stronger call to answer?

Then there's another problem which the aged marshal must face. He must get peace so that his people can get back to work. They need food, and they're going to need it a lot more desperately before this coming winter is over.

Believe me, who saw it in the World

War, the pinched and hungry faces of little children provides a powerful motive for desperate action.

It would seem that Vice-Premier Laval, who twice has been premier of France, is the active influence in the Petain government. He probably is the man behind the sun in arranging for a discussion of the Nazi terms.

Laval is an adroit politician and a smooth worker. My impression of him from personal contact is that he would be a tough opponent in a poker game. He had a preliminary conference with the Nazi authorities on the terms, and I should say that he would have driven as hard a bargain as anyone could with the Führer.

The former premier is credited with being ambitious, but many believe that if he is smart he will satisfy himself with being the power behind the throne and keep Marshal Petain at the head of government. The people of France adore the old soldier and they trust him. They will follow his advice where they wouldn't follow that of Laval.

Laval has a notable precedent before him in the procedure of Hitler himself. You will recall that when aged President von Hindenburg, beloved of all Germans, raised him to the chancellorship, the future "Führer" bided his time for assumption of power until the marshal was dead.

ANNUALS SMACK INTO PROBLEMS

Publishers Fear Appropriations May Not Cover Outlays

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Because the legislature in undertaking to tighten the fiscal administration of Louisiana caused an unintended hitch in the publication of college yearbooks, Attorney General Eugene Stanley had a new problem to solve today.

State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell said that until the attorney general called otherwise, he would hold that fees collected from students for college yearbooks and yearbooks were receipts of the institution and would have to be turned up to the treasury under the terms of the 1939 appropriation act.

act which centralizes all state collections and disbursements.

The attorney general has the question under consideration.

"I understand some of the boys are having trouble getting contracts with publishers," Tugwell said. "There seems to be some doubt as to whether the appropriations for the colleges will cover outlays for the yearbooks. There isn't any way for the colleges to keep the fees collected at the beginning of the year and pay for the books with them."

Tugwell already is collecting gate receipts from football games at all state institutions, as well as board, laundry, tuition, fee and book receipts. He said only three exceptions definitely were recognized, federal funds, bookage deposits and payments to student loan funds.

HE RACED WITH TIME

WILSON, N. C.—(AP)—A freight in the Wilson county jail wandered from the station house to the county jail, where it was found. The freight was a little car, which had been driven by a man who had been in the jail before he could get back in.

"blighted" under the Republican administration, and added:

"But starting in 1933, the new enterprise opened up were 13,000 more than those closed down, and there has been a net increase ever since, ranging up to 40,000 a year."

Herbert Hoover made his first speech of the campaign at Columbus, O., last night and asserted that the New Deal is creating an economic system which "shifts down the suicide road of national socialism."

Urging Willkie's election, the former president said that a third term would violate an unwritten provision of our constitution.

He asserted that Mr. Roosevelt had obtained extraordinary powers which point to an American breed of totalitarianism and charged that in the past seven years people's liberties had been destroyed.

Secretary Ickes said at a press conference in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt's speech Wednesday in Philadelphia had stopped any Willkie trend—"if there ever was a Willkie trend."

Senator Charles L. McNary, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, said in a speech at Kendallville, Ind., that the administration's reciprocal trade program had "sold part of the farmers' domestic market down the river."

Democrats indicated the closing days of the campaign would see an intensification of their drive for votes in the middle west. Senators Barkley of Kentucky, Byrnes of South Carolina and Connally of Texas, among others, will speak there.

Before microphones and on platforms in many sections, campaign speakers continued the sally last night. Highlights included:

New York: Mayor LaGuardia declared that Willkie "seemingly believed that anything goes in a campaign, that no responsibility attaches to a pledge, statement or promise."

Boston: N. Y. Raymond Moley

Philadelphia: Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, said the country was "just about to go under" when Mr. Roosevelt took office and that he led the nation to a "spiritual rebirth."

Seaford, Del.: Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, said that "the chance of keeping the peace is better under Mr. Willkie."

Cleveland: General Hugh S. Johnson declared that if President Roosevelt is re-elected "war is certain and will come soon," and then predicted Willkie's election.

The newspaper columnist and former NRA administrator said that "no act" of Mr. Roosevelt "in the past two years is inconsistent with a purpose of war."

NOW THE ISLANDS WILL GIVE FACTS

HONOLULU—(AP)—Cartoons usually show the South Sea islands being used for either hula dancing or lying idly beneath a palm. But a scientific study of "land utilization" in various remote isles will soon bring forth the real facts. It will be made by Dr. John Coulter of the University of Hawaii, who will spend four months touring the area on the yacht of Mrs. Anne Archbold of New York.

SEIZED WITH DOUBT

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—(AP)—A group of young fellows who went "on the wagon" here got in a doubtful frame of mind about the whole business when one of their number noticed a sign on the rear of a street sprinkler. The sign: "Caution, Sudden Stop."

PLAN TO SPEED PLANE MAKING

Motor Car Industry, Related Groups Appraise Facilities

By David J. Wilkie
(Associated Press Automobile Editor)
DETROIT, Oct. 25.—The motorcar industry and its related groups appraised facilities today for a further acceleration of the national defense program, specifically for a short cut to mass production of aircraft.

Representatives of the automobile industry, the tool and die makers and the body, parts and equipment manufacturers, came here to meet again with William S. Knudsen, member of the national defense advisory commission, in charge of production.

From Knudsen, a production genius who knows all the manufacturing and assembly problems of the automotive industry, they expected to hear another blunt statement of what will be required of them in speeding the defense program.

Early last week Knudsen told the automobile manufacturers that in carrying out his part in implementing the rearmament undertaking he intended to "push and push and keep on pushing," until the flow of needed materials begins to roll out in maximum volume. Previously he had told them that the entire output of machine tools for 1941 already had been spoken for by the defense program planners.

The car manufacturers adopted a resolution at a meeting in New York undertaking "a subordinate work on automotive model changes to the necessities of the defense program, specifically to aviation procurement." Contracts for defense work already allotted to the automobile industry total approximately $500,000,000, chiefly for airplane engines, tanks, guns, shells and like material. Only a small part of it has yet reached the production stage. Tank production by Chrysler and aviation engines by Ford and Packard await completion of new factories, just past the ground-breaking stage.

It is to airplane body parts that major consideration is understood to be planned at today's meetings. Knudsen is said to believe that certain standardized parts can be produced in various automobile plants to be shipped elsewhere for final assembly. He was expected to present to the meetings blueprints and specifications of what he believes the automobile plants can handle with a minimum of delay. The manufacturers will name committees to make an exact listing of the facilities each factory can make

KIN OF KIT CARSON TO SERVE COUNTRY

LA JUNTA, Colo., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Jesse C. Carson, 27, grandson of Indian Scout Kit Carson, who was arranging to go to Finland when the Russo-Finnish war ended, has volunteered for immediate selective military service. Carson was offered a civilian position with the Finnish fortifications engineers.
